The area of fast fashion has grown rapidly as we have sought to dress faster and cheaper. However, there are negative aspects of this industry like environmental load and unfair working environments due to mass production and mass disposal. The loss of the consumers' attachment to goods is another dark side of the fast-fashion world.

The Stump Chair was designed to create awareness about this issue and encourage consumers to choose sustainability over convenience. The chair was made by pressing fabric scraps together to form a solid material that combines strength with beauty.
